

TROPICCO

from the Mozambican coast

THE PRODUCT CATALOGUE

Small-batch coconut oil & artisan goods

— MADE IN MOÇAMBIQUE —

A word from Casa Tropicco.

Tropicco was born on a quiet stretch of the Cabo Delgado coast, where coconut palms have shaded fishermen, farmers and their children for generations. We are not a factory and we are not a brand in the ordinary sense — we are a small co-operative of forty-two families pressing oil the way their grandmothers did: by hand, in cast-iron screw presses, under the same palms that grew the fruit.

Every jar leaves our atelier hand-tied with raw jute and stamped with the lot number it belongs to. Every soap is cut with a wire and wrapped in paper made from sugar-cane pulp. Nothing is rushed. Nothing is wasted. And 100% of the profit returns to the coast.

— Amélia Nhantumbo, founder

Cabo Delgado.

Northern Mozambique is one of the last truly wild coastlines in East Africa. Mangroves, white sand, dhow boats, and the slow turquoise of the Indian Ocean. Our coconuts grow in volcanic-mineral soil twenty metres from the tide line, watered by the monsoon, salted by the air. The result is an oil with remarkable depth — buttery, faintly sweet, never harsh.

A business that gives the coast back.

Tropicco is registered as a part-profit social enterprise under the Fundação Tropicco. After fair wages and the cost of materials, every remaining metical is returned to the community that pressed it.
